to A. A. Chisholm, of Treadwell, N. Y., now. His reason is well worth reading: "For a long time I suffered from indigestion, torpid liver, constipation, nervousness, and general debility," he writes. "I couldn't sleep, had no appetite, nor ambition, grew weaker every day in spite of all medical treatment. Then used Electric Bitters. Twelve bottles restored all my old-time health and vigor. Now I can attend to business every day. It's a wonderful medicine." Infallible for stomach, liver, kidneys, blood and nerves. 50c at all dealers.

The Pedestrian.

Chug-chug!
Br-r-r! br-r-r!
Honk-honk!
Gilligillug-gilligillug!
The pedestrian paused at the intersection of two busy cross streets, and looked about.

An automobile was rushing at him from one direction, a motorcycle from another, an autotruck was coming from behind and a taxicab was speedily approaching. Zip-rip! Zing-glug!
He looked up and saw directly above him a runaway airship in rapid descent.

There was but one chance. He was standing upon a manhole cover. Quickly seizing it, he lifted the lid and jumped into the hole—just in time to be run over by a subway train.—Lippincott's.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

A Card of Introduction.

Gentlemen and citizens of Wolfe county: I am proud of the opportunity of introducing to you James F. Brown, of Gosneyville, as the Republican nominee and candidate for the office of Assessor of Wolfe county, and, gentlemen, being personally acquainted with Mr. Brown and the Brown family, and historically acquainted with their ancestry, I feel somewhat able to do justice, both to Mr. Brown and the public, in presenting him to the people of this county. So, gentlemen and friends, first, and in order that you may know of what family he sprung from and to whom he belongs, according to the ties of nature, I wish to say that he is the younger son of Rev. James M. Brown and wife, Polly Brown, of this place and county, and is a nephew to the well known and dearly beloved Rev. John Brown, of Menefee county, to whose once cheering, but now stilled, voice many of us have oftentimes listened with glad hearts and uplifted souls. He is also a brother to John Brown, Jr., who lost his life by being crushed to death by a log rolling over him. A man whom many of you know and who for generosity and uprightness you have learned to love, and of whom I wish to say that in spirit, principle and practice, and for truth and veracity his young brother is a fair specimen.

He is a grandson of Jackie Rose, one of the first settlers of Stillwater, and who was one of the best and leading citizens of the county in his day.

Mr. Brown is nephew to Uncle Bob and Jeff Rose, of Stillwater, and Uncle John and Joe Rose, of Lacy Creek, all of whom are among the very best, quietest, law abiding and upright citizens of our county.

So now, my friends, you will not be greatly surprised to know my young friend Mr. Brown, as I know him, to be one of the most strictly sober, straightforward, upright, honest and honorable young men of our county, our state, or, as to that matter, our United States.

Gentlemen, I have been well acquainted with Mr. Brown from his early youth and have been associated with him in his home, in school, in church, and in Sunday school, and on the public highway, and have always found him to be pure in conversation, never attempting to use lewd, vulgar, or indecent language, never attempting to swear, never approaching a falsehood, never tattling or talking about his neighbors, or indulging in anything of the kind.

He is a strictly sober man, for as much as I have been with Mr. Brown I have never seen him intoxicated in the least degree; never did I see this young man touch the bottle, drink a drop of whiskey, brandy, beer, or anything of the intoxicating kind. Neither did I at any time in life smell the scent of anything of the kind on his breath.

He is a liberal man, being ever ready to go down in his pocket and bring out any reasonable contribution to relieve the sick or suffering, to aid the church or Sunday school, to assist any worthy friend in doing good to himself or mankind. He stands ever ready to lend an uplifting hand to any church, society or institution in the advancement of the principles of religion, morality, education and refinement. He is a man with an unstained record from his childhood, and is every way just such a man as is worthy of the public honor and support of the good citizens of Wolfe county to whom we look for such a majority of votes as will safely and securely elect him to the office of Assessor of Wolfe county.

Now, gentlemen, we do not ask you to take these claims for true upon our word, but we ask you to see Mr. Brown, see his friends, see any truthful and honest acquaintance of his and learn who Mr. Brown is, and then we feel that you will cheerfully give him your support in the coming November election, and as your hearty approval as to doing justice to you as our fellow citizens, and to Mr. Brown in presenting him to you as our candidate.
D. B. PELFREY.

OUR POSITION.

When a newspaper or an individual takes a position on any question of public agitation, and stands for that position, it should set forth reasons for such a course that the public may understand the truth.

For many years THE HERALD has been published in Hazel Green and has been run as a Democratic paper, and has, as a rule, supported the candidates and policies of the Democratic party, but there have been certain exceptions. It is still a Democratic paper, but first of all it advocates the welfare and best interests of the PEOPLE.

For retrospection: Twelve years ago THE HERALD opposed the election of Judge Redwine because it believed his election was not to the best interests of the people, and it still believes his election was not to their best interests. His term of office of six years, which closed in the dark days of Breathitt county, the days of assassination and feud reign, and martial rule in Jackson in 1902 and 1903, and which, even to this day, has not been fully removed. During his term the Goebel election law was passed, the Music Hall convention, of which Judge Redwine was chairman, was held, and the people know of its results and how it was followed by a Republican victory in this state.

During that six years' term the Hargis rule dominated Breathitt and poisoned the entire state, and made the name of the people of this section odious to the outside world. Judge Hargis and Ed Callahan and Alex Hargis were friends and Judge Redwine was their friend. These matters are matters of history and can not be denied, and for the simple fact that it is said history repeats itself, we refer to these things.

We want the very best conditions for our people, and although this paper may be denounced for its position, it can not support Judge Redwine and his running mate, Mr. Johnson. First, Judge Adams has been on the bench for only a short term, less than two years. He was appointed by the governor to this position, and after serving in this office for one year, the people elected him for the remainder of the term by a majority of nearly 900. We believe that the election last fall was a fair expression of the voice of the people; that Judge White, his opponent for this office, was an honest man, a splendid lawyer, and an upright citizen. The people chose Judge Adams in that contest, and we have seen nothing in his conduct since last election to change the will of the people.

Kelly Kash, the present commonwealth's attorney, was appointed to succeed Judge Adams, and was elected last fall for the remainder of the term by a majority of more than eight hundred over a strong opponent. Mr. Kash was born and raised in this county, was educated in the public schools and at the Hazel Green Academy, and is one of our own boys. He has distinguished himself in this office, has performed his duties conscientiously and well, and met every requirement. In his official position he has met and antagonized the strongest lawyers of the district and has been their equal. During their term the violators of the law have been shown no quarters, and especially have the whiskey men been opposed. The word comes from Breathitt that Judge Adams and Mr. Kash are being opposed by the blind tiger men and bootleggers and peddlers of liquor in Breathitt county, and for this reason, and other reasons above stated, we believe they should have the support of the good people.

There is no reason why this race should have been thrust upon the people. Peace and good will is what we want. There is no reason why there should have been any opposition to Judge Duff and the other candidates in this county, and we believe the Democratic ticket should be elected in this county. Give to the people quiet and peace, and to this end give them officers whose ability and honesty of purpose has been tried.

To Redistrict the State.

More important to the welfare of Kentucky than any act he has performed since he has been the state's chief executive was the appointment by Governor Willson last week of a committee bi-partisan in the political complexion to prepare a measure for the consideration of the next general assembly, redistricting the state into senatorial and legislative districts, in accordance with the constitution, the geography and the census.

Judge Alex P. Humphrey, of Louisville, a Democrat, is named as chairman of the committee. The other members are: Col. Andrew Cowan, Louisville, Republican; Col. John R. Allen, Lexington, Democrat; O. H. Waddle, Somerset, Republican; John F. Hager, Ashland, Democrat; F. L. Edelen, Frankfort, Republican; John F. Shelby, Lexington, Democrat; L. J. Crawford, Newport, Republican; Jere Sullivan, Richmond, Democrat; C. U. McElroy, Bowling Green, Republican.

Mr. Shelby is the Democratic member of the state board of election commissioners, and Mr. Sullivan was the Democratic leader of the last house of representatives. The governor says that as there is no provision of law to pay the expenses of the committee he shall be glad to ask the general assembly, if it approves the result of its labors, to pay the necessary expenses incurred in making the preliminary investigations.

SUNSET.

Majestic beams the sinking sun—
Far in the west it lies,
Illumining all with mellow light
Athwart the evening skies.
I muse as on the sun I gaze—
Its beauty so transcendent,
Its bright rays glistening on the trees,
Making all resplendent.
The waters idly kiss the shore,
And dance in the light;
A water-lily drifts by so quietly
It seems a phantom sight.
A cloud floats o'er the golden sky,
And its blush is shrouded;
But rest a while—the time beguile,
The moon will come unclouded.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, brick-dust, or sediment in the urine, head ache, back ache, lame back, dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousness, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and better health in that organ is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. Swamp-Root corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. A trial will convince anyone. Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root—if you do you will be disappointed.

Frightful Fate Averted.

"I would have been a cripple for life, from a terrible cut on my knee cap," writes Frank Diaberry, Kelliher, Minn., "without Bucklen's Arnica Salve, which soon cured me." Infallible for wounds, cuts and bruises, it soon cures burns, scalds, old sores, boils, skin eruptions. World's best for piles. 25c at all dealers.

A pretty well authenticated rumor was current here Tuesday to the effect that Bowen Rose, candidate county judge on the Republican ticket, and his running mate, Isaac Miller, candidate for sheriff on the same ticket, had withdrawn from the contest. All with whom we talked about the matter, regardless of their political views, said the gentlemen acted wisely.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has become famous for its cures of coughs, colds, croup and influenza. Try it when in need. It contains no harmful substance and always gives prompt relief. Sold by all dealers.

THE HERALD.

DRINK WAINSCOTT'S RONA KOLA

"Our devil" is taking a week of recuperating in the neighborhood of Insko.

A little child of Forest Cecil has membranous croup, or possibly, diphtheria.

Judge Carter and wife, of Bonny, were here a few days last week at the bedside of Chas. W. Cecil, Mrs. Carter's brother.

A. R. Mauppin, Campton's progressive jeweler, drove over last Sunday with his family and visited at Swango Springs.

Emin Elam, an attache of this office, left Saturday for a short visit to relatives and friends at Insko, in Morgan county.

A little child of J. Caesar Lindon and wife, of Gillmore, aged three years, died Tuesday night of diphtheria and was buried Wednesday.

Judge John M. Rose and wife left Saturday for White Oak, in Morgan county, where they visited Mrs. Rose's brother, H. C. Swango, until Monday.

Clarence Blankenship, of Montgomery county, came in Saturday last, since which time he has been visiting relatives and friends in and around Hazel Green.

Alex James, agent for Mrs. Mat Perkins, sold a pair of mules at the John D. Henry sale Tuesday for $175. One was a yearling and the other three years old.

W. G. Lockhart, dentist, is back in his office at Campton, and will remain there until November 15. If you are in need of dental work, you had better call and see him.

Robert Cecil had a sick spell upon his return from Cincinnati, and for a day or so it was thought he was threatened with fever, but he was able to be about Monday.

Moody Chaney, who left Grassy creek, about Mize, some time last spring, came home Saturday and says times are good and honest workers in demand at good wages.

Uncle Jim Little, the venerable Presbyterian minister of our town, has been confined to his home for some time, and owing to his age and enfeebled condition, is in a precarious position.

Bob Bates, of Knott county, passed through here Monday with 64 head of cattle, young and old, which were up to the average in looks and condition. Jim Wilson also passed through with a small bunch.

Miss Esther Pratt, of Gillmore creek, has the thanks of the editor and his better seven-eighths for a string of nice red peppers and a bouquet of old time garden flowers, which like the old time rose smell so sweet.

George W. Barker, of St. Louis, who has been visiting relatives and friends on Grassy for several weeks past, passed through our town last Thursday in company with his brother, J. Dudley Barker, en route to Stillwater to visit other relatives and friends. They made a pleasant call on THE HERALD.

Hazel Green Academy now has a supply of pure drinking water second to none in the state. The well is 85 feet deep and the water, as clear as crystal glass and cold as ice makes it stand 14 feet in a hole six inches in diameter. And is said the flow does not diminish. Taken from any point of view it is a God-send to the school. Mrs. Q. C. Daniel, the matron and temporarily the mother of 300 to 500 young men and young ladies, and must needs resort in every way to make them comfortable at small cost. We have no ice nor can it be brought here at a commensurate cost with board she charges. However, with ice-cold water at hand, in her added capacity of culinary queen, she is able to give them pastry as crisp as any bakery, and they all like to stay there. Hence it is a godsend.

NOTE—Best pastry cooks tell us that the most brittle pie crust is made with ice cold water instead of buttermilk, and of our own knowledge we know that most of bakeries make them that way.

Jack Jackson, of the Middle fork of Licking, died Wednesday night of last week, October 6, aged 78 years. Mr. Jackson was the father of S. H. Jackson, his consort being Mrs. Maggie Jackson, and of D. S. Jackson, husband of Mrs. Julia Cecil Henry, both of the ladies being sisters of Ed F. Cecil. Also father of Mrs. Seborn Walters, near town. The deceased was a man of large influence in his community, and raised six children, five of whom survive, the only deceased being the husband of Mrs. Maggie Jackson. D. S. Jackson, son, and Seborn Walters and wife went to his bedside when they heard of his illness, but got there in time only to attend the burial.

A week or so ago THE HERALD stated that the Hazel Green Bank had received in one day deposits to the amount of $1,700. Just for a moment think of what might have happened had Pierpont Morgan, the New York banker, heard of the transaction. He would have thought capital was concentrating at Hazel Green and Wall street would have been paralyzed. What we intended to say was that a new patron had deposited $1,700 one day as an evidence of good faith. For days in succession deposits ranged from $5,000 to $9,000, and it grows in grace every week. But for all that Wall street need not be distressed.

Arch Childers has contracted with Mrs. Lula Kash to bore a well on her premises here in town and guarantee water. Mrs. Kash has a well about 30 feet deep which usually furnishes plenty of water, but in dry times she has to have it hauled. Quicksand comes in at the bottom and for that reason they had to locate the well in another part of the yard. The result will be anxiously watched for as the sinking of one well in certain radius diminishes the supply of water in one nearby.

Mrs. F. N. Day scraped the artery of her left wrist Monday evening and narrowly escaped severing it. She had a pair of sharp shears pinned to her bosom and in trying to take some chickens from a coop raised her arm, which came in contact with the scissors, one tongue of which penetrated the wrist, barely cutting the artery. The wound bled profusely for a while, but the flow was stopped by Dr. C. Hood Williams and she says she now only feels a numbness.

Cecil Bros., general merchants of our town, this week opened up the largest stock of dry goods, notions, etc., that has been seen here since Hazel Green ceased to be a jobbing town. Robert Cecil, who bought the stock in Cincinnati, told "Our Man About Town" that he struck the market right and can save the people money on every purchase they make of his firm.

The people of this section will be surprised to know that Wednesday morning last a flying machine passed over Morgan county. It was high up, but the people who witnessed it said it was about the length of a railroad car.

What Good Roads Are Saving Farmers.

The Federal Good Roads Department states that the direct saving to the farmers of this country from properly constructed roads would be $25,000,000 annually; that there would be a saving of $100,000,000 in marketing the wheat crop alone; of over $12,000,000 in marketing the corn crop, and of $5,000,000 in marketing the cotton crop. However great the money value of good roads may appear to be, it is not so important as educational and social advantages to be derived therefrom by the residents of rural communities. As a rule, the farmers are more wide awake to the necessity of good roads than the residents in the cities, as proper highways affect directly their comfort and prosperity. This is not a problem for a single locality but concerns vitally the state and nation.

Grand Millinery Opening.

Miss Falay Long has removed her millinery emporium to the second story of Cecil Bros. store, where she has a large front room and has on display an elegant line of fashionable millinery and furnishings for ladies. Friday and Saturday of this week her goods will be on exhibition, and she requests the ladies of town and the vicinity to call and look over the same. The room has the appearance of a fairy palace, and the display is one that only an artistic milliner could arrange. Call and see the line of goods Friday and Saturday of this week and all of next, and you will say the time was well spent.

Defies Governor Willson.

A short time since Governor Willson honored a requisition from the governor of Mississippi for W. J. Rice, accused of embezzling funds from a Mississippi bank. Rice is under indictment and bond in Rowan Circuit court for a similar and more important case, and Judge A. W. Young of that court refuses to let the prisoner be taken from his jurisdiction, ruling that an accused person was only subject to the requisition of a governor when free of any charge in the state from which his return is asked, and ordered Rice to be submitted to Morehead under sheriff's guard to be held for trial there.

Mrs. Malinda Shockey, the venerable mother of Squire Elias Shockey, who made her home with Harlan Wilson, who married her grand-daughter, on Frozen creek, died Sunday, and was buried Monday. She was much respected, leaves a large family of children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. She was 80 years old.

Chas. E. Davis, representing the old reliable patent medicine firm of H. E. Bucklen & Co., of Chicago, was a guest of the Day House Monday night, and incidentally took advantage of the occasion to renew their advertising contract. Coincident with his visit to our town we might state that he was here exactly one year ago to the day.

Uncle Bill Lacy, of White Oak, one of the best known cattle traders in the mountains, died Sunday morning and was buried Monday. He was aged 78 years, and the immediate cause of his demise was acute stomach trouble. He was the father of Mrs. H. C. Swango, and beside her he leaves several grown children.

Charley Rose last week bought of Judge George Carson, of Lacy Creek, the biggest yoke of cattle that was probably ever raised in the mountains. The are 7 years old, bright red in color, and weigh 4,500 pounds. Mr. Rose paid Mr. Carson $150 for the yoke.

Bro. M. A. Egelston, of Mariba, clerk of Greenville Association of Baptists, called at THE HERALD office last Monday, in company with Dr. G. M. Center of our town, and gave an order for printing the minutes of the recent session.

It is the after effect of experience that counts.

KENTUCKY KERNELS

Carefully Collated and Concisely Chronicled.

Oliver White was last week thrown from a mule in Magoffin county and instantly killed.

A Woodford county farmer boasts of raising four-pound sweet potatoes. That's nothing; the farmers in this section have raised six-pound sweet potatoes.

Ed Clutz, entryman for the Big Hill Coal Co., at Idamay, in Lee county, was instantly killed by falling slate the other day. He was only 17 years old.

While John Staton was chopping down a tree near Upper Salt Lick, in Bath county, it fell the wrong way and caught Staton, crushing his leg almost off at the knee.

At Glasgow, one day last week, Odell Kirby, a negro, fatally cut Tom Sikes, a white man. Feeling against the negro runs high and a lynching will follow if he is caught.

The postoffice at Crooks, in Bath county, was broken into by burglars recently but thieves got only $2. The express office was broken into the same night and about $25 taken.

Luther Downs shot and fatally wounded Frank Robinson, at Salt Lick, Bath county, as the result of a dispute over a gallon of whiskey. Downs escaped into the mountains, but was later captured and taken to Owingsville jail.

Clinton Bowman, a white barber of London, was doing a rushing business until he was caught up with for selling whiskey without a license. He pleaded guilty to three counts and was fined $300. Uncle Sam now has him in tow on similar charges.

Deserted by her husband and forced to earn her own and children's living, Mrs. Viola Burgess, member of one of the most prominent families of Ohio county, was driven insane and is now confined in the asylum, while her three small children are left in destitute circumstances.

A seven-months-old baby boy was found in a cornfield near Mt. Vernon, in Rockcastle county, one morning recently. The infant was crying and cold, and bore indications of having lain in the field the greater part of the night. County Judge Bethune placed it with a good family who will adopt it.

Acting Governor Cox last week granted the first pardon of his sitting in the new capitol and released John D. Turner, of Breathitt county, convicted of manslaughter and sentenced in 1905 to 21 years in the penitentiary. In reviewing the case he says that it appears that Turner was the victim of circumstances and was prosecuted by one of factions existing in Breathitt county.

Colonel E. W. Lillard, who represented Boyle county in the recent legislature and was one of the four Democrats who voted with the Republicans to elect W. O. Bradley to the United States senate, was last week fined $3,300 for the illegal sale of liquor at his drug store in Danville. He was allowed to compromise the case by paying $300 and closing his store permanently.

Rabbit Season Closed.

The closed season for the hunting of rabbits and squirrels is now on, and it is against the law to kill these animals from now until the beginning of the quail season, November 15. The law governing these animals was passed for the purpose of affording protection to quail for the two months immediately preceding the expiration of the closed season. Some hunters take advantage of the opportunity offered for other game and kill quail while supposed to be hunting for rabbits and squirrels.

Your cough annoys you. Keep on hacking and tearing the delicate membranes of your throat if you want to be annoyed. But if you want relief, want to be cured, take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Sold by all dealers.

Nervous Prostration

"I suffered so with Nervous Prostration that I thought there was no use trying to get well. A friend recommended Dr. Miles' Nervine, and although skeptical at first, I soon found myself recovering, and am to-day well."

MRS. D. I. JONES,
5800 Broadway, Cleveland, O.

Much sickness is of nervous origin. It's the nerves that make the heart force the blood through the veins, the lungs take in oxygen, the stomach digest food, the liver secrete bile and the kidneys filter the blood. If any of these organs are weak, it is the fault of the nerves through which they get their strength. Dr. Miles' Nervine is a specific for the nerves. It soothes the irritation and assists in the generation of nerve force. Therefore you can hardly miss it if you take Dr. Miles' Nervine when sick. Get a bottle from your druggist. Take it all according to directions, and if it does not benefit he will return your money.

Explorer's Own Account of His Journey to the Goal—Hunting Adventures Among the Eskimos

[FIRST ARTICLE]

THE expedition was equipped at Gloucester, Mass. All was ready on the evening of July 3, 1907. Ashore boys were testing their fireworks for the morrow of celebration, but aboard, as our vessel, the John R. Bradley, withdrew from the pier, all was quiet. There were no visiting crowds of curiosity seekers. No tooting whistles signaled our departure.

An arctic expedition had been born without the usual public bombast. There was, indeed, no excuse for clamor. Neither the help of the government nor the contributions of private individuals had been sought. The project was quietly given life and its expenses were paid by John R. Bradley. Its destiny was shaped by the writer.

Mr. Bradley was interested in game animals of the north. I was interested in the game of the polar quest. For the time being the business concerned us only. If the venture proved successful there would be time enough to raise the banner of victory. If it failed none had the privilege of heaping upon us the unmerited abuse which usually comes to the returning polar traveler.

In a brief month all had been prepared for the peculiar mission. We had purchased a strong Gloucester fishing schooner, fitted with a motor, covered for ice and loaded down with suitable supplies for a prolonged period.

One morning the bold cliffs of Cape York were dimly outlined in the gray mist which screened the land. A storm had carried so much ice against the coast that a near approach was impossible, and continued winds kept up a sea which made it equally a difficulty to land on the ice.

In Ice Free Polar Waters. Though anxious to meet the natives at Cape York, we were forced to turn and set a course for the next village, at North Star bay. At noon the sooty clouds separated, and in the north through the narrow breaks we saw the steep slopes and warm color of crimson cliffs resting on the rising water.

Darting through the air were countless guillemots, gulls, little auks and eider ducks. We were in the ice free north waters, where creatures of the sea find a marine oasis in midst of a polar desert.

This kind of coast extends poleward to the land's end. It is the abundant sea life which makes human habitation just possible here, though land animals are also important.

The people of the farthest north are crowded into a natural reservation by the arctic ice wall of Melville bay in the south and the stupendous line of cliffs of Humboldt glacier in the north.

Home of the Eskimos. Widely scattered in small villages, the northernmost Eskimo finds here a good living. A narrow band of rocky land between the land ice and the sea offers grasses upon which feed ptarmigan, hare and caribou.

Numerous cliffs and islands afford a resting place in summer for myriads of marine birds that seek the small life of the icy waters. Blue and white foxes wander everywhere. Seal, walrus, narwhal and white whale sport in the summer sun, while the bear, king of the polar wilds, roams over the sea at all times.

The yacht dodged the icebergs and dangerous rocks in the fog about Cape Athol, then turned eastward to cross Wolstenholme sound.

As we neared Table mountain, which guards North Star bay, many natives came out in kayaks to meet us. Some were recognized as old friends. There was Myah, he of many wives; Oobloiah, who had executed Angoogibah, styled the villain by Gibson at Redcliffe House, and Pincoota, husband of the queen, in whose family are to be found the only hybrid children of the tribe.

Later, Knud Rasmussen, a Danish writer, living as a native among the people, came aboard. With him we got better acquainted during the winter.

Late at night a visit was made to the town of Oomanooi. There were seven triangular seal-skin tents, conveniently placed on picturesque rocks. Gathered about these in large numbers were men, women and children, shivering in the midnight chill.

They were odd looking specimens of humanity. In height the men averaged but five feet two inches and the women four feet ten inches. All had broad, fat faces, heavy trunks and well rounded limbs. Their skin was slightly bronzed. Men and women had coal black hair and brown eyes. The nose was short, and the hands and feet were short, but thick.

There was not much news to exchange. After we had gone over the list of marriages and deaths the luck of the chase became the topic of conversation.

It was a period of monogamy. Myah had exchanged a plurality of wives for a larger team of dogs, and there was but one other man in the tribe with two wives.

Women were rather scarce. Several marriageable men were forced to forego the advantages of married life because there were not enough wives for all. By mutual agreement several men had exchanged wives. In other cases women had chosen other partners, and the changes were made seemingly to the advantage of all, for no regrets were expressed.

There was an average of three fat, clever children for each family, the youngest, as a rule, resting in a pocket on the mother's back.

Dwellings of the Eskimos. The tent had a raised platform upon which all slept. The edge of this made a seat, and on each side were placed stone lamps, in which blubber was burned, with moss as a wick. Over this was a drying rack, and there was other furniture.

On board the yacht there had been busy days of barter. Furs and ivory had been gathered in heaps in exchange for guns, knives and needles. Every seaman from cabin boy to captain had suddenly got rich in the gamble of trade for prized blue fox skins and narwhal tusks.

The Eskimos were equally elated with their end of the bargain. For a beautiful foxskin of less use to a native than a dog pelt he has secured a pocket knife that would serve him half a lifetime.

A woman had exchanged her furs, worth a hundred dollars, for a red pocket handkerchief, with which she would decorate her head and igloo for years to come.

The midnight tide lifted the yacht on an even keel from her makeshift dry-dock on the beach, and she was pulled out into the bay and anchored for a few hours. Oomanooi was but one of six villages in which the tribe had divided its 250 people for the current season.

To study the people, to further encourage the game of barter and to enjoy the rare sport of yachting and hunting in man's northernmost haunts we prepared to visit as many villages as possible.

In the morning the anchor was raised, and the yacht set sail to a light wind headed for more northern villages.

Ducks were secured in abundance. Seals were given chase, but they were able to escape our craft. Nearing Saunders island a herd of walrus was seen on a pan of drift ice far ahead of the yacht.

Two with splendid tusks were obtained, and two tons of meat blubber were turned over to our Eskimo allies.

An Eskimo Widow's Story.

Among the Eskimo passengers pacing the deck was a widow, who, in tears, told us the story of her life—a story which offered a peep into the comedy and tragedy of Eskimo existence. She had arranged a den under a shelter of seal-skins among the anchor chains. We had offered her a large bed, with straw in it, and a place between decks as a better nest for her brood of youngsters, but she refused, saying she preferred the open air on deck.

She had come from American shores, and, as a foreign belle, her hand was sought early. At thirteen Ikwa introduced her to a wedded life not strewn with blubber. He was cruel and not always truthful.

Two girls graced their home. One was now married. When the youngest was out of her hood, Ikwa took the children and invited her to leave, saying that he had taken to wife Ahtah, a plump maid and a good seamstress.

Manee had neither advantage, but she knew something of human nature, and soon found another husband, a good deal older, but better than the first. Their life was a hard one, for Nordingwah was not a good hunter, but their home was peaceable, quiet and happy. Two children enlivened it. Both were at her side on the yacht, a boy of eight, the only deaf and dumb Eskimo in all the land, and a thin, pale twinkling of three.

Both had been condemned by the Eskimo law of the survival of the fittest, the first because of insufficient senses and the second because it was under three and still on its mother's back when the father passed away. They were not to participate in the strife of life. But an unusual mother loved them.

A few days before the previous winter the old father, anxious to provide warm bearskins for the prolonged night, had ventured alone far up into the mountains. His gun went off accidentally, and he never returned.

The executor of the brother of Manee's former husband was kind to her for the long night and kept famine from her door. In the summer day she had been able to keep herself, but who could provide for her for the night to come? Her only resource was to seek the chilled heart of her former husband, and we were performing the unpleasant mission of raking her to him as wife No. 2.

When we later saw Ikwa he did not thank us for the trouble we had taken, but we had expected no reward.

The speed of the yacht increased as the night advanced. A snow squall frosted the decks, and to escape the icy air we sought our warm berths early. At 4 o'clock in the morning the gray gloom separated and the warm sun poured forth a suitable wealth of August rays.

At this time we passed the ice battered and storm swept cliff of Cape Parry. Beyond was Whale sound. On a sea of gold, strewn with ice islands of ultramarine and alabaster, whales spouted and walrus shouted. The grampus was out early for a fight. Large flocks of little auks rushed over on hurried missions.

Entering Ingfield Gulf.

The wind was light, but the engines pulled us along at a pace just fast enough to allow us to enjoy the superb surroundings. In the afternoon we were well into Ingfield gulf, and near Ittblu there was a strong head wind and enough ice about to engage the eye of the lookout.

We aimed here to secure Eskimo guides and with them seek caribou in Olrick's bay. While the yacht was tacking for a favorable berth in the drift off Kanga the launch was lowered and we sought to interview the Eskimos of Ittblu. There were only one woman, a few children and about a score of dogs at the place. The woman talked quickly and explained at some length that her husband and others were away on a caribou hunt, and she told us without a leading question the news of the tribe for a year.

After gasping for breath like a smothered seal, she began with news of previous years and a history of the forgotten ages. We started back for the launch, and she invited herself to the pleasure of our company to the beach.

An Eskimo Trade.

We had only gone a few steps before it occurred to her that she was in need of something. Would we not give her a few boxes of matches in exchange for a narwhal tusk? We would be delighted, said Mr. Bradley, and a handful of sweets went with the bargain. Her boy brought down two ivory tusks, each eight feet in length. The two were worth $150.

Had we a knife to spare? Yes, and a tin spoon was also given just to show that we were liberal.

The yacht was headed northward across Ingfield gulf. It is necessary for deep sea craft to give Karnah a wide berth. There were bergs enough about to hold the water down, though an occasional sea rose with a sickening thump.

The launch towed the dory, of which Manee and her children were the only occupants.

Karnah was to be her future home, and as we neared the shore we tried to locate Ikwa, but there was not a man in town. Five women, fifteen children and forty-five dogs came out to meet us. The men were on a hunting campaign, and their location was not exactly known.

Attahungwah, Manee's rival, a fat, unsocial creature, stood on a useful stone, where we chose to land, and did not accommodate us with footing on the same platform.

A Thrifty Eskimo Camp.

There were five seal-skin tents pitched among the bowlders of a glacial stream. An immense quantity of narwhal meat was placed on the rocks and stones to dry. Skins were stretched on the grass, and a general air of thrift was shown about the place.

Bundles of seal-skins, packages of pelts and much ivory were brought out to trade and establish friendly intercourse. We gave them sugar, tobacco and ammunition in quantities to suit their own estimate of value.

The fat woman entered her tent, and we saw no more of her during our stay, for she did not venture to trade as did the others. Manee was kindly treated by the other village folk, and a pot steaming with oily meat was soon served in her honor. We were cordially invited to partake of the feast, but had a convenient excuse, just having finished a meal.

Would we not place ourselves at ease and stay for a day or two, as their husbands would soon return? We were forced to decline their hospitality, for without the harbor there was too much wind to keep the yacht waiting.

Eskimos have no system of salutation except a greeting smile or a parting look of regret. We got both at the same time as we stepped into the launch and shouted goodbye.

Aboard, the captain was told to proceed to Cape Robertson. The wind eased, a fog came over from the inland ice and blotted out the landscape down to about a thousand feet, but under this the air was clear.
